Detroit Man Not Afraid of Possible Sit-Down

DETROIT, April 8.—(UP)—The United Automobile Workers decided today to organize employees in Henry Ford's vast motor plants fully before moving "with caution" to deal with the manufacturer who declared he "never would recognize" any union.

At his Ways, Ga., winter estate, Ford denounced the U. A. W. and its sit-down strike tactics and asserted that he would deal with "individual workers." In Detroit, John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, shouted to a cheering throng of union members: "Henry Ford will change his mind on this subject."

Recognized by Two

The union already had won recognition from two of the "Big three" in the automobile industry—General Motors and Chrysler—and its leaders announced that efforts would be made to establish as collective bargaining agent the Ford's employees.

"But," Lewis cautioned, "the men will be organized before they engage Mr. Ford in conversation."

The Ford-Lewis exchange came while 90,000 workers in the Chrysler Corporation and "feeder" plants prepared to return to their jobs after settlement of a month-old strike. The union won from Walter P. Chrysler the right to bargain for its own members in his nine plants, and he was assured that sit-downs and other strikes would be banned during the life of the agreement.

Governor Frank Murphy, who brought Lewis and Chrysler together in "peace conferences" that began March 24, followed mediation of the Chrysler strike with swift settlement of a sit-down affecting 2,400 employees of the Reo Motor company. He continued efforts today to end a strike that has made 11,000 Hudson Motor car company workers idle.

SEWER PIPE NEEDED, TOO

Kind of Work to be Done at Hall is Discussed

Two ordinances authorizing Service Director J. F. Mavis to advertise for materials needed by his department were passed by city council Wednesday night.

He was instructed to advertise
for 25,000 to 50,000 gallons of road oil and 1,000 to 6,000 of M. T., a material used for mixing with stone for street patching. The ordinance had previously had one reading in council and was tabled
until the amount of material wanted was determined.

He was instructed to advertise
for bids on eight-inch vitrified sewer pipe. The amount is not to exceed 2,000 feet.

A resolution was adopted instructing the service director to make an agreement with the Pennsylvania railroad for installation of a sewer pipe under the Ohio street crossing. The work will be done in about 10 days.

Carl C. Leist, solicitor, was instructed to include both copper and galvanized materials in an ordinance originally specified copper equipment. Members believed the price of copper had advanced to a point they should consider galvanized equipment. The ordinance was not read in council Wednesday night.

WATER, DRAINED INTO SANITARY SEWERS, REPORT

J. F. Mavis, service director, was instructed by city council
Wednesday night to investigate
a report that storm water was being drained into sanitary sewers
at various places in Montclair addition.

Councilman Frank Marion explained this practice should not be permitted and should be corrected
as soon as possible.

Councilmen planned to meet
with railroad officials Wednesday night to discuss safety devices at crossings but the meeting was postponed after the death of Frank Baker. Arrangements will be made for the meeting in the near future.

David Courtwright, city engineer,
was instructed to finish plans to install a sewer in Seyfert park
to connect with a home to be built in the addition.

Recognized as the top ranking outdoor star, George O'Brien which opens Friday at the Cliftona
Theatre in his second George A.
Hirshman Production for RKO Radio release, "Park Avenue Logger."

Having recently won salvos of praise for his outstanding characterization of Daniel Boone in the historical drama of the same name, O'Brien portrays a modern lumber-
jack in his new action film.

The story, adapted to the screen
from the Saturday Evening Post yarn by Bruce Hutchison, revolves around O'Brien's thrilling adventures in a logging camp where his father sends him with the idea of making a he-man out of the peaceful young city dweller. Secretly
a masked wrestling champion,
O'Brien finds the giant timber region a perfect place to indulge in his passion for battling, especially when two crooked timber bosses
try to frame him and run him out of the country.

AT THE GRAND

Just the sights and sounds and smells of an ocean liner give Kay Francis the urge to travel. In her latest Warner Bros. picture, "One Way Passage," now showing at the Grand Theatre, many of the scenes are taken aboard a liner on the Pacific, just off the port of Los Angeles.

In "One Way Passage," a Warner Bros. picture, Miss Francis is accompanied on the trip by William Powell, who is co-starred with her. Others in the cast are Aline MacMahon, Warren Hymer,
Frank McHugh, Douglas Gerrard,
Herbert Mundin and Frederick Burton. Tay Garnett directed the picture.

AT THE CIRCLE

So pronounced has been the work of young David Sharpe, a new figure in feature length photoplays, that his producer, William Berke, has raised his cinematic status from feature player to that of full stardom. Sharpe is seen in "Social Error," now playing at the Circle Theatre, in his first role of top rank star.

Starting with the release of "Adventurous Knights," Sharpe's
work has attracted so much favorable mention from motion picture critics and the public that this former champion tumbler of the world, singer and dancer, was practically forced into stardom. He was rather reluctant about accepting the responsibility that goes with stardom, being a youngster
and somewhat lacking in his own ability, but discussions with his producer have eliminated self-consciousness.

SEWER PIPE NEEDED, TOO Kind of Work to be Done at Hall is Discussed

Two ordinances authorizing Service Director J. F. Mavis to advertise for materials needed by the department were passed by city council Wednesday night.

He was instructed to advertise for 25,000 to 50,000 gallons of road oil and 1,000 to 6,000 of M. T. a material used for mixing with stone for street patching. The ordinance had previously had one reading in council and was tabled until the amount of material wanted was determined.

He was instructed to advertise for bids on eight-inch vitrified sewer pipe. The amount is not to exceed 2,000 feet.

A resolution was adopted instructing the service director to make an agreement with the Pennsylvania railroad for installation of a sewer pipe under the Ohio street crossing. The work will be done in about 10 days.

Carl C. Leist, solicitor, was instructed to include both copper and galvanized materials in an ordinance originally specified copper equipment. Members believed the price of copper had advanced to a point they should consider galvanized equipment. The ordinance was not read in council Wednesday night.

PERIL OF EIGHT PLANE VICTIMS SEEN IN WRECK

Several Hours' Fruitless Search For Bearing Recounted

ALL PASSENGERS DEAD

Six Bodies in Cabin Burned Beyond Recognition

McNARY, Ariz., April 8—(UP)—The six passengers who perished Saturday when a Douglas transport plane crashed in the White mountains probably knew of their peril during the several hours that the two pilots groped for bearings, lost in a blinding snowstorm, people here said today.

A band of men camped today beside the wreckage, waiting for toboggans on which to carry the eight bodies down the rugged slope of Mount Baldy to civilization.

From the reports of natives who had seen the doomed plane Saturday afternoon flying dangerously low around the mountain tops, air-men visualized the plight of those aboard. The plane had no radio transmitter. Pilots Glen Moser and Joe Wolfolk had encountered the snow storm soon after they left Los Angeles, bound for Albuquerque. They veered south, beyond reach of the radio beacons that guide planes on the route.

Hoped to Escape

The pilots had hoped to skirt the storm but found it worse as they proceeded south. They searched blindly and hopelessly for a place to land, unable to call for radio bearings or to make their plight known. Five times they were seen circling Escudilla peak. They turned back north to find the regular route and dove headlong into Mt. Baldy which arose through the storm clouds in their path. Meanwhile, two TWA airliners, equipped with two-way

Another Bird House

Another very pretty little bird house adorns the door yard of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cooper. It is the handiwork of our Ed. F. Schlegel who has quite a complete woodworking shop. The Coopers now have two bird houses and if all the birds that fed here during the winter stay in this locality, a dozen more houses will be needed. Hundreds fed here and mean just what we say.

Auditor Graul of the state sales tag department was here and visited our sales tag force today and gave them a clean bill, no fault to find and no corrections to make. Sure this is pleasing. Eight hundred and twenty-eight passenger car tags have been issued to date. Many trucks and trailer tags have been supplied.

Three on Jury
Grover Cline, Helen Cromley and Florence Peters are serving from Pickaway county on a Fairfield county petit jury. This is a case wherein the County Commissioners of that county have been sued. It includes the citizenry interested as taxpayers. This is why a jury is chosen from outside that county.

P. T. A. To Meet
The Parent-Teacher Association of Walnut township will hold its regular meeting at their school building on next Monday evening, April 2. The program has been prepared by the parents and will be something out of the ordinary line. A very cordial invitation is extended to all.

Tosca To Go East
In ten days or slightly more Quentin Tosca will leave Ashville for Old Orchard, Maine, a summer resort. He conducts bowling alleys there and is kept busy until the middle of September. Occasionally young men from here go there with him and find employment quite remunerative.

Struck Upside Down

"The plane struck upside down," the major said. "It split in two. Most of it burned but the gasoline in one wing tank was not ignited. 'Nothing in the world but bad weather was to blame. The pilot was blinded by snow and fought to get clear, but he headed into the mountainside head-on. A half mile back of the wreckage a tree was sheared off where the plane first struck."

"The fuselage burned. It may be possible to identify two of the bodies inside, one man and one woman."

Mrs. Fridley Stricken

Mrs. Sarah Fridley suffered a severe heart attack at her home Wednesday. She is some improved this morning.

Fred Curry Busy

Fred Curry told us Wednesday that he has work now on hand to last him for some time. He is a cement and all around workman and not afraid to do a good job of it at whatever he undertakes to do. "Any kind of work worth doing is worth doing well," he said.

Hedges' Dog Dies

The old, reliable, farm dog, seven years old, at the home of Richard (Dick) Hedges, near South Bloomfield, which acted strangely yesterday, showing all symptoms of rabies, died last night. The head today is being taken to Columbus where it will be determined what the trouble was.

GOELLER NAMES THREE TO TALK RESTROOM PLAN

Council's service committee, consisting of T. M. Barnes, Ben Gordon and E. S. Neuding, was appointed Wednesday night by John Goeller, president, to meet with the county commissioners concerning installation of public restrooms in the front of the courthouse.

Commissioners some weeks ago expressed their willingness to cooperate with the city in installing the restrooms.

Mayor W. J. Graham, president of the Board of Health, asked the appointment of a committee to meet with the county group to study the program.

MRS. HALEY ELECTED

TOLEDO, O., April 8—(UP)—Mrs. W. S. Haley of Toledo, was elected president of the Ohio Daughters of 1812 at the annual convention of the organization here yesterday. Other officers elected included: Mrs. W. O. Johnson, Manchester, historian; and Mrs. Charles Mains, of Greenfield, chaplain.

$257 SPENT FOR SHOES FOR CITY'S NEEDY CHILDREN

Circleville has spent $257 during the present school term for shoes for needy children.

Harry Steinhauer, councilman, said he had worked with the mayor and George Marion, attendance officer, on the project. Council appropriated $300 for shoes.

No additional appropriations will be made to the shoe fund due to the condition of the city's general fund.

In addition to the amount spent by the city, Mayor Graham has purchased and repaired shoes through funds presented by a local organization.

CITY MAY HIRE MAN TO PREPARE PROJECT PLANS

The city may employ an engineer in the near future to work out extensive improvements to be listed with W. P. A.

Vattier Courtwright, field engineer, informed council Wednesday night that all improvements wanted should be submitted under a major project before July 1.

"Everything you have the slightest idea you want improved within the next year and a half should be submitted," Mr. Courtwright said. This project would include improvements on streets, sewers, sidewalks and alleys.

Due to the vast amount of work required to prepare the various projects an engineer would be needed. At present the improvements are being considered by a council committee and will be reported at a meeting in the near future.

If there was panic in the cabin all traces of it were annihilated in the wreckage. It was charred by fire. The six bodies inside were burned beyond recognition. The two pilots were thrown clear. Moser struck with such force that his body was impaled on a three-inch tree.

It required four days of searching by air and land to locate and reach the wreckage. A party of 50 men arrived at the scene late Wednesday, after a wearisome expedition up the desolate, snow-banked mountain.

Major Victor Bertrandias, official of the Douglas company which built the plane for a Holland airline, accompanied the ground party up the mountain and returned to McNary late last night. He said it probably would take three days to clear away the wreckage and remove the six bodies from the cabin. The dead pilots were to be brought down today.

KANSAS RIGID IN CONTROLLING BEER DRINKING

Only Citizens of Upright Character May Sell 3.2 Beverage

INJUNCTION PROVIDED

County Boards Permitted To Fix Stringent Laws

TOPEKA, Kas., April 8—(UP)—After 50 years of strict prohibition, "bone dry" Kansas has decided to legalize 3.2 beer—but the law governing its sale is more rigid than in any state in the Union.

The law legalizing 3.2 beer will take effect May 1, and on the same date the regulatory laws will go into effect. It prohibits persons under 18 years of age from requesting beer taverns or from working as a waiter or bartender in any establishment selling beer. The sale of beer between midnight and 6 a. m. on weekdays is prohibited and no beer at all may be sold on Sundays or election days.

Persons who operate beer taverns must be 21 or older and citizens of the United States.

Good Character Mandatory

No person may sell beer who within two years of his application for a license has been convicted of a felony, of drunkenness, of driving a motor car while intoxicated, or of violating the liquor laws of any state. Moreover, a beer tavern operator must be of "good character and reputation in the community in which he resides."

Breweries or beer distributors will not be permitted to install fixtures or equipment for dispensing beer in retail establishments. "No manufacturer, distributor or wholesaler," the law reads, "directly or indirectly shall sell, supply, furnish, give or pay for, or loan or lease any furnishings, fixture or equipment for dispensing beer."

Injunction Is Provided

"The attorney general or county attorney at all times shall have the power to enjoin any party from selling cereal malt beverages notwithstanding the fact the party has a license and permit, providing it shall appear he has violated any regulation of the act. Injunction proceedings shall be the same as is now prescribed for the enjoining of intoxicating liquor nuisances."

An operator's license will be revoked if he sells beer to persons under 18, permits an intoxicated person to remain in his place, is himself continually intoxicated, or is a dealer in whisky or other "hard" liquors.

The law forbids "private or closed rooms or closed booths" in the place of business where beer is sold.

Violations of the law call for fines of not more than $500 or jail sentences of not more than one year, or both.

License Fee Law

Operators of beer taverns must pay a state license fee of between $25 and $50 a year and a distributor or wholesaler must pay $300 for a license. Moreover, cities and county boards are vested with the authority to make their own rules concerning dispensing of beer if they decide the state law is not stringent enough.

When the beer bill was up for debate many legislators desired to include a clause prohibiting women and girls from serving beer. This was finally omitted, however, when other legislators protested that such a law would throw thousands of waitresses out of work in restaurants where beer is sold.

The clause requiring all operators of beer establishments to be citizens primarily affects the coal and lead mining region of Southeastern Kansas where many foreigners have settled. Many of these people have taken out their first citizenship papers.

Pensions for Youth

MISS PHYLLIS MAYER, co-ed of Weber College, Ogden, Utah, wants to secure pensions for young people to enable them to attend college. She wants $100 a month for all persons between the ages of 18 and 24, which she calls "the best years of life". Her organization has been named "Youths' Revolving Live and Learn Fund". "By the time students are 24," says Miss Mayer, "they have had a good chance to enter their chosen field of occupation, and have a good time in the meanwhile."

YEAR THIRTY ON CO-OP FARM

HILLHOUSE, Miss. — (UP) — Thirty-one sharecropper families who less than a year ago possessed nothing looked back over a year of productive labor today, counted a few dollars saved and looked ahead to the prospect of better times than they have ever known.

They were members of a self-sustaining colony established by Dr. Sherwood Eddy and others on a 2,138-acre tract near here called the Delta Co-operative Farm.

Balancing its books after nearly a year of trial and error, the farm's manager, Sam Franklin, presented this accounting: Gross income of nearly $17,000 leaving, after operating expenses are subtracted, $1,000 to be applied on the investment and nearly $8,500 to be distributed among the 31 families.

Cotton Brings $13,000 The cotton crop of 160 bales from 300 acres produced $13,000 of the total income, and sale of timber cut on the land brought in the other $4,000.

From the money to be pro-rated among the families according to work done, averaging about $300 each, advances during the year for living expenses will be deducted. In most cases the advances added up to about $180 per family through December.

Franklin also announced that in addition an estimated $5,000 to $5,500 in permanent improvements had been spent. The improvements included the erection of more than 20 houses to replace the flimsy shacks and tents in which the colonists lived at first.

The houses, a large community building and other structures were built by the sharecroppers out of lumber cut on the land.

The Delta Co-operative farm came into existence late last March after an outbreak of tenant farmer troubles in Eastern Arkansas, in which the Southern Tenant-Farmers union was involved.

Studied Co-ops Abroad

Franklin, a former missionary in Japan who had come under the influence of Kagawa and his co-operative movements in the Orient, saw in the sharecropper situation in this country an opportunity to apply what he had learned in Japan and also in Russia and England.

He persuaded Eddy to join him, and after several visits to the cotton country the Delta farm was purchased for $5 an acre. It is in

Bolivar county, the largest cotton raising county in the world. About 500 acres were cleared for cultivation at once, the rest being left in second-growth timber.

During the past season an additional 200 acres were cleared. Among the 31 families on the farm are several negro groups. The two races live on separate ridges but make common use of the community buildings in the valley.

Drouth, malaria and other "problems by the bush" beset the colonists, but Franklin expressed the belief on the first year, results had shown generalities and similarities in the shiftness of the sharecroppers.

"No manufacturer, distributor or wholesaler," the law reads, "directly or indirectly shall sell, supply, furnish, give or pay for, or loan or lease any furnishings, fixture or equipment for dispensing beer."

Injunction Is Provided

"The attorney general or county attorney at all times shall have the power to enjoin any party from selling cereal malt beverages notwithstanding the fact the party has a license and permit, providing it shall appear he has violated any regulation of the act. Injunction proceedings shall be the same as is now prescribed for the enjoining of intoxicating liquor nuisances."

An operator's license will be revoked if he sells beer to persons under 18, permits an intoxicated person to remain in his place, is himself continually intoxicated, or is a dealer in whisky or other "hard" liquors.

The law forbids "private or closed rooms or closed booths" in the place of business where beer is sold.

Violations of the law call for fines of not more than $500 or jail sentences of not more than one year, or both.

License Fee Law

Operators of beer taverns must pay a state license fee of between $25 and $50 a year and a distributor or wholesaler must pay $300 for a license. Moreover, cities and county boards are vested with the authority to make their own rules concerning dispensing of beer if they decide the state law is not stringent enough.

When the beer bill was up for debate many legislators desired to include a clause prohibiting women and girls from serving beer. This was finally omitted, however, when other legislators protested that such a law would throw thousands of waitresses out of work in restaurants where beer is sold.

The clause requiring all operators of beer establishments to be citizens primarily affects the coal and lead mining region of South-eastern Kansas where many foreigners have settled. Many of these people have taken out their first citizenship papers.

She wants $100 a month for all persons between the ages of 18 and 24, which she calls "the best years of life". Her organization has been named "Youths' Revolving Live and Learn Fund". "By the time students are 24," says Miss Mayer, "they have had a good chance to enter their chosen field of occupation, and have a good time in the meanwhile."

HILLHOUSE, Miss. — (UP) — Thirty-one sharecropper families who less than a year ago possessed nothing looked back over a year of productive labor today, counted a few dollars saved and looked ahead to the prospect of better times than they have ever known.

They were members of a self-sustaining colony established by Dr. Sherwood Eddy and others on a 2,138-acre tract near here called the Delta Co-operative Farm.

Balancing its books after nearly a year of trial and error, the farm's manager, Sam Franklin, presented this accounting:

Gross income of nearly $17,000 leaving, after operating expenses are subtracted, $1,000 to be applied on the investment and nearly $3,500 to be distributed among the 31 families.

Cotton Brings $13,000

The cotton crop of 160 bales from 300 acres produced $13,000 of the total income, and sale of timber cut on the land brought in the other $4,000.

From the money to be pro-rated among the families according to work done, averaging about $300 each, advances during the year for living expenses will be deducted. In most cases the advances added up to about $150 per family through December.

Franklin also announced that in addition an estimated $3,000 to $5,000 in permanent improvements had been spent. The improvements included the erection of more than 20 houses to replace the flimsy shanties and tents in which the colonists lived at first.

The houses, a large community building and other structures were built by the sharecroppers out of lumber cut on the land.

The Delta Co-operative farm came into existence late last March after an outbreak of tenant farmer troubles in Eastern Arkansas, in which the Southern Tenant-Farmers union was involved.

Studied Co-ops Abroad

Franklin, a former missionary in Japan who had come under the influence of Kagawa and his co-operative movements in the Orient, saw in the sharecropper situation in this country an opportunity to apply what he had learned in Japan and also in Russia and England.

He persuaded Eddy to join him, and after several visits to the cotton country the Delta farm was purchased for $5 an acre. It is in

A PROSPECT THAT PLEASURES

THIS is the time of year when the ardent gardener will begin to concern
himself with the problems that lie in the offing. He will experience, to begin with, an urge to get out in the yard with a rake, but determinism in his own mind upon due consideration that it is a little too early for practical operations, he will devote himself to the theory of the business.

In his mind's eye the garden of the Spring and Summer will assume form.
First, of course, there will be the gay army
of tulips, a beautiful prelude to a changing and ever-thrilling pageant. Then the annuals and perennials will make their appearance. Running along the back of the bed will be the tall-growing cosmos and room will be found, of course, for the old standbys, zinnias, and for asters and scabi-
osa, ageratum, calendulas and larkspur, petunias and marigold, snapdragon and countless other flowers, all depending upon the individual fancy of the gardener.

And if this gardener has the proper spirit, if he knows his verbenas, his salpiglossis
and his plox drummondii, he will have each in its place, a spot where the soil is just right and where there is the ideal distribution of sunshine and shade. The whole plan will be put down carefully on paper in anticipation of the day when conditions call for the use of spade and rake
and hoe, when the plan will be transferred from paper to the good earth.

Of course, there is no certainty that enthusiasm for the perfect garden will not diminish as the season advances and the scene changes from the realm of the imagination to the realities of the back yard.
Nevertheless, it is a pleasant prospect to contemplate.

THE PROVING GROUND

SPAIN continues to serve the purposes
of a proving ground for the highly militarized nations of Europe that are producing armaments on a huge scale and are naturally desirous of authentic knowledge
as to the quality of their products.

Germany has learned through operations in Spain that the tanks in which Herr Hitler, General Goering and others of the great minds among the Nazis placed such high hopes are poor things at best. It Duce has found out with pained astonishment
that his planes are not the last word in military aviation, also that his fighting
men fall far short of being invincible.

Russia's experience has been much more satisfactory. The newest type of Russian bombing planes are in the service of the Loyalist Government. Fifteen of these planes made a raid over the city of Cordoba, held by the rebels, with glowing success. Direct hits were scored and the planes flew away with incredible speed.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up feeling glum, a hangover
from an experience of the previous afternoon when did make a trip to Columbus with Sheriff Radcliff. In the back seat of the wagon on that 26 mile trip sat a pleasant young man,
a lad with all the appearance of
better than average intelligence, soft spoken, quick to smile. On his way to the Ohio penitentiary
to serve a prison term for attempting to kill a policeman.

A boy bidding farewell to freedom, going to a living death,
and on all sides Nature stirring to new life in Spring. What thoughts ran through that young mind? On his face no indication of remorse, only interest in sights of the trip. Imprisonment was not to be a new experience, for he had just left
the reformatory a few days ago,
regarded there as the institution's model prisoner. He was on his way to "college" after being graduated from "high school."

At entrance to the penitentiary a group of trustees halted
work and deliberately inspected
the youth. Then a barred door opened, another and another and uniformed guards took the prisoner and placed him in a small barred room with a single window. The boy turned to the window and watched a group of marching convicts. Some of them were smiling, others wore scowls. "Come here!" called a guard and the young man marched into another room and out of sight, becoming a number. On the wall of the office hung a big card indicating the prison's population for the day.
It was changed.

One wonders how youngsters
of that kind get off on the wrong foot. There a young man any-employer might have been glad to have in his organization. The lure of "easy money" was too strong for him. And he too young to know that never has there been and never will be

"easy money."

The trip back, conversation touching on this and that. Then the question of why the handcuffs on the youth. "He made his brags about what he intended to do," said the sheriff, "and we were instructed to watch him closely." Came the thought: I wonder if that is why the sheriff invited me on this trip. A silent chuckle over what a poor
picker the sheriff had been.

Arrived in the village to learn
of a "murder scare" during our absence, but it was no murder at all, just a couple of men shooting at each other. Yes, a sheriff leads a busy and interesting life, but one for which the scriv-ener has no yearnings. Charlie likes it and is the most efficient peace officer that has come to attention in a quarter of a century.

Daily Washington
Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

FDR HAD NARROW ESCAPE

WASHINGTON — The Senate's rejection
of Senator Jimmy Byrnes' proposed rider to the Guffey coal bill condemning sit-down strikes was a close squeak for the President.

For a time, it looked as if the sponsors
of the amendment would succeed in their
strategy to force him to declare himself on the sit-down issue. That was the real reason behind their desperate attempt to hang a rider on the Guffey bill.

In private conversation Byrnes of South Carolina and Senator Josiah Bailey of North Carolina frankly admitted this.

A resolution of condemnation is only an expression of congressional opinion. It does not involve the President, since it does not go to him for signature or veto.
But by tacking such a declaration onto the Guffey bill, an Administration measure
certain of enactment, the anti-sit-downers
would have put Roosevelt squarely on the spot. He would have had to sign or veto
the bill.

Whatever Roosevelt did, he could not have ducked taking a stand on the labor issue.

DILEMMA

If he approved the bill without comment, his action would have been considered an endorsement of the sit-down condemnation. If he vetoed it, labor would have hailed it as disapproving the rider.
Being put over the barrel in this manner
was the last thing the President wanted.
He does not want to take a public stand on sit-down strikes one way or the other. The question is loaded with too much political dynamite. It involves not only general labor relations, but taking sides in the furious
row between the A. F. of L., whose President Bill Green has denounced sit-downs, and the C. I. O., whose unions are the chief users of the technique.

So Administration floor leaders put on the heat and, after five days of acrimonious
battling and with the aid of the Republican liberals, they squelched the Byrnes-Bailey raid.

NOTE: A significant feature of the final vote was the fact that all the leading Democratic opponents of the President's Court bill voted for the rider. The one exception was Senator Burt Wheeler, who ducked the vote entirely. The Montanan is under heavy labor fire in his State for fighting the Court plan.

PATRONAGE

Before the Supreme Court battle is won,
it looks as if the Administration will have mortgaged itself in patronage up to the hilt. It will take a lot of juick jobs to swing certain Senators.

One unfortunate movement the Supreme Court fight may cut into is the crime prevention program of the Justice Department. A very essential part of this program is the work of U. S. district attorneys in securing convictions.

All the sleuthing of Super-Dick J. Edgar Hoover would be worth nothing without a corps of forthright district attorneys to follow through. On the whole the New Deal's district attorneys have been good.

Now, however, certain Senators, seeing Roosevelt in a tight place for their votes,
have demanded the ousting of old district
attorneys, appointment of their friends.

Migraine Attack Stopped but Not Cured

B. LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
YESTERDAY we described the symptoms and how you can recognize a peculiar form of headache known as migraine. Today we want to discuss treatment.

Dr. Clendening

Every time I write on the subject, I get a number of letters from people who have a remedy. The peculiar thing is that most of the remedies
are different, and a significant thing is that they come from people

over 45 or 50 years of age—significant because migraine usually goes away spontaneously at this time.
Those who are in the period of life when the attacks are actually coming on—about 15 to 45—
try one remedy after another,
without relief. A great many people feel they can stop an attack if they can just get the intestines to moving. The condition undoubtedly is a sensory discharge which affects the intestines, as well as the nerves in the head, and if the intestinal tleup can be averted, the sensory discharge can be stopped.

I don't think it means that if a cathartic works and stops an attack of migraine, the migraine is due to intestinal absorption. The most hopeful treatment simply aims to stop an attack and not to cure the underlying condition.
This has been possible with a drug known as ergotamine tartrate. It must be given hypodermically under the care of a physician. If taken at the beginning of an attack, it will stop the attack in a great many instances. Of 120 patients in one series reported, the initial trial resulted in abrupt and complete relief of the migraine attack at 107. Many patients have used ergotamine for more than a year, and 95 per cent have obtained relief in each of the repeated cases

in which ergotamine has been used.

Very few ill effects have been reported, but there is a possibility,
and for that reason it should be given under the care of a physician. Practically all physicians are familiar with its action and use today, since it was first reported nearly 11 years ago, and has become very popular lately.

It is of no value by mouth, and will not prevent future attacks.
How its acts is unknown. After its injection both systolic and diastolic
blood pressure and pulse rate fall. It is known to increase blood flow through the brain. None of these actions are sufficient to account for the beneficial effect in migraine.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
Mrs. B. T.: "Is there any way of whitening dark teeth? My teeth remain dark and yellow in spite of the fact that I brush them daily."
Answer: There is no external way to whiten teeth beyond their natural shade. It is possible, by very severe operations to the inside of the teeth, to whiten them,
but this is not advisable.

W. R. B.: "What should be done to correct an eight-year-old boy
who is a true left-hander—left-handed, left-footed, a mirror writer, etc.?"
Answer: No effort should be made to try to teach him righthandedness. The mirror writing indicates that a study should be made to determine whether this accompanies reversal of images, which would be confusing to the boy's schooling.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

Poems That Live

OUR SISTER
Her face was very fair to see,
So luminous with purity—
It had no roses, but the hue
Of lilacs lustrous with their dew—
Her very soul seemed shining through!

Her quiet nature seemed to be
Tuned to each season's harmony.
The holy sky bent near to her;
She saw a spirit in the stir
Of solemn woods. The rills that beat

Their mosses with voluptuous feet,
Went dripping music through her thought.
Sweet impulse came to her unsought
From graceful things, and beauty
took
A sacred meaning in her look.

In the great Master's steps went she
With patience and humility.
The casual gazer could not guess
Half of her veiled loveliness;
Yet ah! what precious things lay hid

Beneath her bosom's snowy hid—
What tenderness and sympathy,
What beauty of sincerity,
What fancies chaste, and loves,
that grew
In heaven's own stainless light
and dew!

True woman was she day by day
In suffering, toil, and victory.
Her life, made holy and serene
By faith, was hid with things unseen.
She knew what they alone can know
Who live above but dwell below.

—Horatio Nelson Powers.

READ THIS FIRST:
Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, has been reluctantly agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500-000 from an American uncle. In keeping with the plan, Col. Alex. Lutzman
an ex-convict, and the lawyer
Asson, are stopping at the same hotel in Columbus with Mrs. Smith and her daughter. In dire financial straits, Mrs.
Smith has persuaded Jacqueline to marry Asson, posing as a wealthy Englishman, unsuspectingly falling in with the plan of the three men to have Asson cultivate the girl, have all of her property assigned to him before their marriage, then splitting up the inheritance. Mrs. Smith, who learns of it, told Jacqueline her mother's returned, marked "insufficient funds,"
After meeting Jacqueline, Stuckey returned reluctant than ever to go through with the scheme and stabs by telling them all the proper details of the signed in London. Back in London
Charles leaves Lutzman in his office
while he goes after Jim Asson.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:
CHAPTER 19
CHARLES STUCKEY strode
out of his office and, as the door
closed, Lutzman crossed to the desk
and began methodically going through the various papers that littered it. More than once in his past he had found that inspecting papers on Mrs. Smith, in drawers, and if he was fortunate, in safes, was a profitable occupation for any moments in which he might be left alone in someone else's office. But on this occasion he had hardly begun his inspection when the door
was flung open and Miss Harring-ray, with a filing basket filled with papers in her hand, came jauntily
into the room, saw him, and halted abruptly.

"Looking for anything?" she inquired.
"Could adjust his eyeglasses and bestow the stars with which he intended to wither her: "All right,
don't mind me. But there's nothing there worth reading; I've had a look myself."

She went to the safe, tried the handle, found that it was locked,
crossed to the desk and pulled at the top left-hand drawer. That,
too, was locked, and with a groan
of exasperation she set down the filing basket, produced a hairpin
from her unruly mass of hair, and thrust it into the lock of the drawer.

"Looking for anything?" smiled
Lutzman.
"The safe key?"
"In that drawer? Rather a dangerous place for a safe key,
isn't it?"

"You'd better tell Mr. Stuckey," advised Miss Harringray. "He keeps it here, not I. I've told him to have the contract ready for signature."
We only keep our tea and sugar
there. Our clients are terror-struck tea and sugar if we leave them about."

"And do you make a habit of picking the locks of Mr. Stuckey's desk? That's what you're trying to do, isn't it?"
"It's what I'm doing if this
or not he's sleeping with his shoes
on."

A PROSPECT THAT PLEASES

THIS is the time of year when the ardent gardener will begin to concern himself with the problems that lie in the offing. He will experience, to begin with, an urge to get out in the yard with a rake, but determinism in his own mind upon due consideration that it is a little too early for practical operations, he will devote himself to the theory of the business.

In his mind's eye the garden of the Spring and Summer will assume form. First, of course, there will be the gay army of tulips, a beautiful prelude to a changing and ever-thrilling pageant. Then the annuals and perennials will make their appearance. Running along the back of the bed will be the tall-growing cosmos and room will be found, of course, for the old standbys, zinnias, and for asters and scabiosa, ageratum, calendulas and larkspur, petunias and marigold, snapdragon and countless other flowers, all depending upon the individual fancy of the gardener.

And if this gardener has the proper spirit, if he knows his verbenas, his salpiglossis and his plox drummondii, he will have each in its place, a spot where the soil is just right and where there is the ideal distribution of sunshine and shade. The whole plan will be put down carefully on paper in anticipation of the day when conditions call for the use of spade and rake and hoe, when the plan will be transferred from paper to the good earth.

Of course, there is no certainty that enthusiasm for the perfect garden will not diminish as the season advances and the scene changes from the realm of the imagination to the realities of the back yard. Nevertheless, it is a pleasant prospect to contemplate.

THE PROVING GROUND

SPAIN continues to serve the purposes of a proving ground for the highly militarized nations of Europe that are producing armaments on a huge scale and are naturally desirous of authentic knowledge as to the quality of their products.

Germany has learned through operations in Spain that the tanks in which Herr Hitler, General Goering and others of the great minds among the Nazis placed such high hopes are poor things at best. Il Duce has found out with pained astonishment that his planes are not the last word in military aviation, also that his fighting men fall far short of being invincible.

Russia's experience has been much more satisfactory. The newest type of Russian bombing planes are in the service of the Loyalist Government. Fifteen of these planes made a raid over the city of Cordoba, held by the rebels, with glowing success. Direct hits were scored and the planes flew away with incredible speed.

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up feeling glum, a hangover from an experience of the previous afternoon when did make a trip to Columbus with Sheriff Radloff. In the back seat of the wagon on that 26 mile trip sat a pleasant young man, a lad with all the appearance of better than average intelligence, soft spoken, quick to smile. On his way to the Ohio penitentiary to serve a prison term for attempting to kill a policeman.

A boy bidding farewell to freedom, going to a living death, and on all sides Nature stirring to new life in Spring. What thoughts ran through that young mind? On his face no indication of remorse, only interest in sights of the trip. Imprisonment was not to be a new experience, for he had just left the reformatory a few days ago, being regarded there as the institution's model prisoner. He was on his way to "college" after being graduated from "high school."

At entrance to the penitentiary a group of trustees halted work and deliberately inspected the youth. Then a barred door opened, another and another and uniformed guards took the prisoner and placed him in a small barred room with a single window. The boy turned to the window and watched a group of marching convicts. Some of them were smiling, others wore scowls. "Come here!" called a guard and the young man marched into another room and out of sight, becoming a number. On the wall of the office hung a big card indicating the prison's population for the day. It was changed.

One wonders how youngsters of that kind get off on the wrong foot. There a young man employer might have been glad to have in his organization. The lure of "easy money" was too

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

FDR HAD NARROW ESCAPE

WASHINGTON — The Senate's rejection of Senator Jimmy Byrnes' proposed rider to the Guffey coal bill condemning sit-down strikes was a close squeak for the President.

For a time, it looked as if the sponsors of the amendment would succeed in their strategy to force him to declare himself on the sit-down issue. That was the real reason behind their desperate attempt to hang a rider on the Guffey bill.

In private conversation Byrnes of South Carolina and Senator Josiah Bailey of North Carolina frankly admitted this.

A resolution of condemnation is only an expression of congressional opinion. It does not involve the President, since it does not go to him for signature or veto. But by tacking such a declaration onto the Guffey bill, an Administration measure certain of enactment, the anti-sit-downers would have put Roosevelt squarely on the spot. He would have had to sign or veto the bill.

Whatever Roosevelt did, he could not have ducked taking a stand on the labor issue.

DILEMMA

If he approved the bill without comment, his action would have been considered an endorsement of the sit-down condemnation. If he vetoed it, labor would have hailed it as disapproving the rider.

Being put over the barrel in this manner was the last thing the President wanted. He does not want to take a public stand on sit-down strikes one way or the other. The question is loaded with too much political dynamite. It involves not only general labor relations, but taking sides in the furious row between the A. F. of L., whose President Bill Green has denounced sit-downs, and the C. I. O., whose unions are the chief users of the technique.

So Administration floor leaders put on the heat and, after five days of acrimonious battling and with the aid of the Republican liberals, they squelched the Byrnes-Bailey raid.

NOTE: A significant feature of the final vote was the fact that all the leading Democratic opponents of the President's Court bill voted for the rider. The one exception was Senator Burt Wheeler, who ducked the vote entirely. The Montanan is under heavy labor fire in his State for fighting the Court plan.

PATRONAGE

Before the Supreme Court battle is won, it looks as if the Administration will have mortgaged itself in patronage up to the hilt. It will take a lot of quick jobs to swing certain Senators.

One unfortunate movement the Supreme Court fight may cut into is the crime prevention program of the Justice Department. A very essential part of this program is the work of U. S. district attorneys in securing convictions.

All the sleuthing of Super-Dick J. Edgar Hoover would be worth nothing without a corps of forthright district attorneys to follow through. On the whole the New Deal's district attorneys have been good.

Now, however, certain Senators, seeing Roosevelt in a tight place for their votes, have demanded the ousting of old district attorneys, appointment of their friends.

Migraine Attack Stopped but Not Cured

B. LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. Yesterday we described the symptoms and how you can recognize a peculiar form of headache known as migraine. Today we want to discuss treatment.

Dr. Clendening

Every time I write on the subject, I get a number of letters from people who have a remedy. The peculiar thing is that most of the remedies are different, and a significant thing is that they come from people over 45 or 50 years of age—signifying because migraine usually goes away spontaneously at this time.

Those who are in the period of life when the attacks are actually coming on—from about 15 to 45—try one remedy after another, without relief. A great many people feel they can stop an attack if they can just get the intestines to moving. The condition undoubtedly is a sensory discharge which affects the intestines, as well as the nerves in the head, and if the intestinal tieup can be averted, the sensory discharge can be stopped. I don't think it means that if a cathartic works and stops an attack of migraine, the migraine is due to intestinal absorption.

The most hopeful treatment simply aims to stop an attack and not to cure the underlying condition. This has been possible with a drug known as ergotamine tartrate. It must be given hypodermically under the care of a physician. If taken at the beginning of an attack, it will stop the attack in a great many instances. Poems That Live

Her face was very fair to see,
So luminous with purity—
It had no roses, but the hue
Of lilies lustrous with their dew.
Her very soul seemed shining through!

Her quiet nature seemed to be
Tuned to each season's harmony.
The holy sky bent near to her;
She saw a spirit in the stir
Of solemn woods. The rills that
Their mosses with voluptuous feet,
Went dripping music through her thought.
Sweet impulse came to her unsought
From graceful things, and beauty took
A sacred meaning in her look.

In the great Master's steps went she
With patience and humility.
The casual gazer could not guess
Half of her veiled loveliness;
Yet a! what precious things lay hid
Beneath her bosom's snowy lid;
What tenderness and sympathy,
What beauty of sincerity,
What fancies chaste, and loves,
That grew
In heaven's own stainless light
and dew!

True woman was she day by day
In suffering, toil, and victory.
Her life, made holy and serene
By faith, was hid with things unseen.
She knew what they alone can know
Who live above but dwell below.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

Mrs. B. T.: "Is there any way of whitening dark teeth? My teeth remain dark and yellow in spite of the fact that I brush them daily."

Answer: There is no external way to whiten teeth beyond their natural shade. It is possible, by very severe operations to the inside of the teeth to whiten them, but this is not advisable.

W. R. B.: "What should be done to correct an eight-year-old boy who is a true left-hander—left-handed, left-footed, a mirror writer, etc.?"

Answer: No effort should be made to try to teach him right-handedness. The mirror writing indicates that a study should be made to determine whether this accompanies reversal of images, which would be confusing to the boy's schooling.

READ THIS FIRST:

Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, reluctantly agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500,000 from an American uncle. In keeping with the plan, Col. Alex Lutman—who has a hold over Stuckey—Jim Asson, an ex-convict, and the lawyer are stopping at the same hotel in Circleville. In dire financial straits, Mrs. Smith has persuaded Jacqueline to marry Asson, posing as a wealthy Englishman, unsuspectingly falling in with the plan of the three men to have her property assigned to him before their marriage, then splitting up the inheritance before she learns of it. Lutman, as Jim's "trustee," has hurried Jacqueline's decision by revealing a check he cashed for her mother returned marked "insufficient funds." After meeting Jacqueline, Stuckey is more reluctant than ever to go through with the scheme and stalls by telling them all the property deed must be signed in London. Back in London Charles leaves Lutman in his office while he goes after Jim Asson.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 19

CHARLES STUCKEY strode out of his office and, as the door closed, Lutman crossed to the desk and began methodically going through the various papers that littered it. More than once in his past he had found that inspecting papers on desks, in drawers, and in a safe, was a profitable occupation for any moments in which he might be left alone in someone else's office. But on this occasion he had hardly begun his inspection when the door was flung open and Miss Harrington, with a filing basket filled with papers in her hand, came jauntily into the room, saw him, and halted abruptly.

"Looking for anything?" she inquired. And before the Colonel could adjust his eyeglass and bestow the stare with which he intended to wither her: "All right, don't mind me. But there's nothing there worth reading; I've had a look myself."

She went to the safe, tried the handle, found that it was locked, crossed to the desk and pulled at the top left-hand drawer. That, too, was locked, and with a groan of exasperation she set down the filing basket, produced a hairpin from her unruly mass of hair, and thrust it into the lock of the drawer.

"Looking for anything?" smiled Lutman.

"The safe key."

"In that drawer? Rather a dangerous place for a safe key, isn't it?"

"You'd better tell Mr. Stuckey," advised Miss Harrington. "He keeps it here, not I. But there's nothing in our safe worth pinching. We only keep our tea and sugar there. Our clients are terrorists for tea and sugar if we leave them about."

"And do you make a habit of picking the locks of Mr. Stuckey's desk? That's what you're trying to do, isn't it?"

A NEW YORK hotel stages boxing bouts as part of its floor show for diners. Probably in an effort to recreate the atmosphere of home—fights at meal times.

We haven't seen the advertisements, but they should read: "Enjoy your favorite punch with your meals."

A good many gyp night clubs ought to pick up the idea. Their customers, then, would go away satisfied that they weren't the only ones who got a trimming.

By staging a brawl between two heavies during the main course the management might make the customer forget his steak is strictly a lightweight.

With a card full of fake knock-out and phony decisions on each Friday, mine host could obtain the proper fish atmosphere.

The bell sounding the end of each round would also denote a rest period for the customer who has been struggling with a dull knife and a hard-boiled porterhouse.

darned hairpin doesn't bend," replied Miss Harrington. "It's one of my accomplishments. One of our regular clients taught me. Care to learn? But I don't suppose there's much you don't know about it. What's your line—blackmail? It's dangerous, but you ought to be all right with Mr. Stuckey. He's extra hot stuff on blackmail, so they say."

"Thank you for the tip," smiled Lutman. "And now I'll give you one, shall I? Eyes off Jim Asson!" Miss Harrington tilted her chin. "I don't know what you mean."

"Just that if you go on looking at him in the way I saw you looking at him at the Empire Cinema the other night, you're riding for a broken heart. He's going to be married."

Miss Harrington shrugged a shoulder, inspecting the bent hairpin thoughtfully. "I should worry! I suppose you haven't got a hairpin, have you?" Before the Colonel could reply, the door opened and Mr. Bell's head appeared.

"Two ladies—highly respectable—to see Mr. Stuckey, as per appointment," he announced; and, as Miss Harrington hurried, at a gesture from Lutman, toward the door, Mrs. Smith, with Jacqueline following, sailed gracefully into the room.

"My dear Colonel Lutman, what a dreadful neighborhood!" she exclaimed. "It smells of fried fish and hops."

"The staple diet in these parts," Mrs. Smith, Lutman informed her. "I should starve," said Mrs. Smith. "Where's Mr. Stuckey?"

"He won't be many minutes. He has just gone out."

"I have an appointment for 12 o'clock and he has no right to be out. Who was that girl?"

"That's Mr. Stuckey's typist, Miss Harrington."

"How dreadful! And that's what you wanted to be, Jacqueline—working here all day and going home at night to a lonely little bedroom. You'll be much more comfortable married to Jim. Where is Jim?"

"He'll be along in a minute, Mrs. Smith," said Lutman.

"Everybody seems to be coming along in a minute, and I'm quite tired of the place already."

"The Colonel waved her toward the armchair."

"Sit down, Mrs. Smith," he invited. "It won't take many seconds to fix things up when Stuckey does turn up. I've told him to have the contract ready for signature."

"You've told him, Colonel?" said Jacqueline. "You're rather taking charge of things, aren't you?"

"My dear Jacqueline, don't be so ungracious," removed her mother. "After all the Colonel has done for us! I'm sure I don't know where we should have been without him."

"In some other hotel, mother."

He gave himself an Easter present this year of an extra pound of goose feathers for his pillow.

"There is only one thing wrong with sleep," Yawn said in a bedside interview today, "when a fellow is asleep he's unconscious and so, unfortunately, is unaware of all the fun he's having."

At this point his eyelids lowered with the speed of a spinster's window blinds, indicating the interview was over.

As the reporters tip-toed on their way out they heard Yawn muttering to himself in his slumber. He was apparently enjoying a new dream under the impression he had been elected unanimously as the governor of the state of Coma.

GOMEZ TO COME BACK

Plenty of Runs Needed to Win Games

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
NEW YORK, April 8 — (UP) — The same fellows who said Joe Louis couldn't lose to Max Baerling have the American league pennant all won for the New York Yankees. Everybody's picking the Yanks because they have the punch. It's easy to go overboard for the guy who can punch, be it prize ring or baseball diamond. But maybe the Yanks have a vulnerable spot the same as Joe Louis. You wouldn't think so from the world champions' spring record of 17 victories out of 20 games, but let's see who they've been picking on.

They beat the Boston Bees seven times, and the Bees have won only four out of 16 games this spring. They licked the Cardinals twice, and broke even in two games each with the Reds and Dodgers. They lost a game to Newark and in the rest of their schedule they've bowled over Newark, Tallahassee, New Orleans, Houston, Galveston, Dallas and Fort Worth.

Star is Holdout
The Yanks' vulnerable spot is the pitching staff. The club's best pitcher is Red Ruffing, a holdout. He won 20 games last year. The Yanks aren't good enough to sacrifice a 20-game pitcher. If and when Ruffing does join the Yanks, he may not be in shape to pitch for weeks.

Look at the Yanks' staff — Pearson, Gomez, Murphy, Broaca, Hadley, Malone, Brown, Wicker, Makosky and Sundry. Try and pick a 20-game winner in that bunch. Try and pick a 4-man staff. Gomez is being counted on for a big comeback. After two bad years it seems reasonable that Gomez's fast ball will sprout wings again. In his last appearance on the mound the Dallas Texas league club rapped him for 4 runs and 10 hits in six innings. Just a winter ago the Yanks had run second three times in a row and Joe McCarthy was sure he

RAW ROOKS

ANOTHER youngster from the sandlots of Cleveland making his bid in the big time is Del Ed Young, Jr., who comes up to the Phillies from Okla-homa City, where he batted .28 last year.

Not so lusty with the stick, Young is brilliant around the second sack.

Born in Nashville, Tenn., in 1912, Del was brought up in the baseball atmosphere, for at that time his father was a minor league star with the Vols. His father, by the way, played 15 years in the minors and wound up playing the outfield for the Reds in 1909.

Young Del's career began at Burlington, in 1931. He made trips to Catalina island, in 1932 and again in '33, with the Chicago Cubs.

Young is a switch hitter and throws right-handed. He is five feet eleven inches tall and weighs 168.

would never win a flag with this almost identical team, now called invincible. Along came Joe Di-Maggio and overnight changed the Yanks into a winner.

The Yanks have a championship team every place but in the box where they're strictly second division.

They can still hit, but so can Joe Louis, but look what happened to him when Schmeling came to bat. The Yankee pitching staff may be as wide open as the Brown Bomber's jaw when the firing starts.

DODGERS OFFER HASSETT, WILSON FOR PHILLY ACE

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., April 8 — (UP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers, buzzing with trade rumors, came here today to play the St. Louis Cardinals in their last game of the training season.

It was reported Dodgers Manager Grimes had completed arrangements for sending First-Baseman Buddy Hassett and Outfielder Eddie Wilson to the Philadelphia Phillies in exchange for first-sacker, Dolph Camilli, who is a holdout. Another report has Grimes trading Hassett and Utility Infielder Jim Bucher to the Boston Bees for Baxter Jorian.

MILLER OUTFIT TO RELY ON OLD ATHLETES AGAIN

Donie Bush's Baseball Team to Average 28 Years of Age

MANY VETERANS LISTED

Reynolds, Cooke Added to Brilliant Outfield

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex., April 8 — (UP) — Unlike most minor league owners, M. J. (Mike) Kelley of the Minneapolis club of the American Association, is satisfied to gamble on gate receipts and not the sale of players to the majors to bring him a profit.

Yearly the Millers put on the field the most experienced club in the association. The combine which is in training here now under the shrewd management of Owen J. (Donie) Bush is not an exception to the rule.

The Minneapolis squad of 27 men as a mature one. The average age of the players is 28 years and most of the performers are either veteran association players or former major league stars on their way down.

"Cinderella Man" Included

For infield duty Bush has available Andy Cohen, Roy Pfeiffer, John (Blondy) Ryan and Fresno Thompson of last season's club. The additions are a promising youngster, Hank Plarito, up from Knoxville; Ralph (Red) Kress, the one-time "Cinderella Man" of the Washington Senators; Augie Luther, last season with Memphis, and Harry Thompson, formerly at Chattanooga.

Cohen or Pfeiffer will get the call at second; either Ryan or Kress at short, and Thompson at third. The first base post is wide open and Bush probably will not make his final choice until after the squad heads north.

Spencer Harris, starting his 17th season in professional baseball and his ninth with the Millers, likely will get one of the outfield posts. Carl Reynolds, from Washington, and Allan (Dusty) Cooke, from the Red Sox, are the choices for the other two garden spots.

Other outfielders on the roster include Bob Holland, a holdover; and Lindsey Deal, a rookie who hit .308 with Little Rock last season.

Reg Grabowski, Walter Tauscher, Belve Bean and Jim Baker, holdovers who won 39 games for the Millers last season, will form the nucleus of the pitching staff.

Three Likely Newcomers

Three newcomers counted upon to augment the crops are Kip Sauborn, a southpaw who won 23 and lost 6 for Tyler last season; Phil Weiner, another southpaw, acquired from St. Paul, and Wilson Hayes, 22-year-old righthander from Greenville, whose 1936 mark was 16 won and 12 lost.

The bulk of the catching will be handled by George (Skeets) Dick-ey, a brother of Bill of the New York Yankees, and William (Pinky) Hargreaves.

GREENBERG PUTS NAME ON DOTTED LINE; TEAM WINS

LAKELAND, Fla., April 8 — (UP) — Relieved of excess baggage, and with the heavy-hitting Hank Greenberg's name on a regular contract, Manager Mickey Cochrane began today to put his Detroit Tigers through a week of strict conditioning with no more exhibition games until they meet the Reds in Danville, Va., April 15.

Greenberg, who had been working under a provisional contract calling for $1,000 until it was determined his twice-broken wrist had healed completely, signed a one-year contract last night after hitting two more home runs as the Tigers licked the Washington Senators 12-10 in a slugging match.

Earlier Cochrane had released five players—Don French, George Coffman, Frank Croucher, Herman Clifton, and Mike Tresh—to the Toledo Mudhens of the American Association.

PARK PREPARES FOR ARRIVAL OF DATE FOR RACES

COLUMBUS, April 8 — A more capacious and more beautiful Beulah Park will greet the return of the thoroughbred to these parts when the Ohio turf season opens here on Saturday, May 15.

A force of several hundred men is rushing to completion the improvements at the course. The new mile track is about ready. The grandstand has been doubled in size. A clubhouse is being built. The Jockey Club is spending $100,000 in the program that will make Beulah Park the center of racing in the Buckeye state.

The most modern type of finish camera operated by the "electric eye" will be installed. Pictures of all close finishes will be posted, that the patrons may see for themselves proof of the order of finish in the races.

These improvements and higher purses offered will attract better horses to the popular Grove City course. Already over 1,500 horses are available for the less than 700 stalls at the track.

Along with better horses and better accommodations for the patrons, the Jockey Club is not forgetting to adorn its handsome new plant.

There will be a lake in the infield. Approaches to the course as well as the infield will be planted with flowers and shrubs. Beulah Park will be a pleasant place when the horses return next month.

Reynolds, Cooke Added to Brilliant Outfield

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex., April 8 — (UP) — Unlike most minor league owners, M. J. (Mike) Kelley of the Minneapolis club of the American Association, is satisfied to gamble on gate receipts and not the sale of players to the majors to bring him a profit.

Yearly the Millers put on the field the most experienced club in the association. The combine which is in training here now under the shrewd management of Owen J. (Donie) Bush is not an exception to the rule.

The Minneapolis squad of 27 men as a mature one. The average age of the players is 28 years and most of the performers are either veteran association players or former major league stars on their way down.

"Cinderella Man" Included

For infield duty Bush has available Andy Cohen, Roy Pfeiffer, John (Blondy) Ryan and Fresno Thompson of last season's club. The additions are a promising youngster, Hank Flarito, up from Knoxville; Ralph (Red) Kress, the one-time "Cinderella Man" of the Washington Senators; Augie Luther, last season with Memphis, and Harry Thompson, formerly at Chattanooga.

Cohen or Pfeiffer will get the call at second; either Ryan or Kress at short, and Thompson at third. The first base post is wide open and Bush probably will not make his final choice until after the squad heads north.

Spencer Harris, starting his 17th season in professional baseball and his ninth with the Millers, likely will get one of the outfield posts. Carl Reynolds, from Washington, and Allan (Dusty) Cooke, from the Red Sox, are the choices for the other two garden spots.

Other outfielders on the roster include Bob Holland, a holdover; and Lindsey Deal, a rookie who hit .308 with Little Rock last season.

Reg Grabowski, Walter Tauscher, Belve Bean and Jim Baker, holdovers who won 39 games for the Millers last season, will form the nucleus of the pitching staff.

Three newcomers counted upon to augment the crops are Kip Sauburn, a southpaw who won 23 and lost 6 for Tyler last season; Phil Weinert, another southpaw, acquired from St. Paul, and Wilson Hayes, 22-year-old righthander from Greenville, whose 1926 mark was 16 won and 12 lost.

The bulk of the catching will be handled by George (Skeets) Dickey, a brother of Bill of the New York Yankees, and William (Pinky) Hargreaves.

GREENBERG PUTS NAME ON DOTTED LINE; TEAM WINS

LAKE LAND, Fla., April 8 — (UP) — Relieved of excess baggage, and with the heavy-hitting Hank Greenberg's name on a regular contract, Manager Mickey Cochrane began today to put his Detroit Tigers through a week of strict conditioning with no more exhibition games until they meet the Reds in Danville, Va., April 15.

Greenberg, who had been working under a provisional contract calling for $1,000 until it was determined his twice-broken wrist had healed completely, signed a one-year contract last night after hitting two more home runs as the Tigers licked the Washington Senators 12-10 in a slugging match.

Earlier Cochrane had released five players—Don French, George Coffman, Frank Croucher, Herman Clifton, and Mike Tresh—to the Toledo Mudhens of the American Association.

PARK PREPARES FOR ARRIVAL OF DATE FOR RACES

COLUMBUS, April 8 — A more capacious and more beautiful Beulah Park will greet the return of the thoroughbred to these parts when the Ohio turf season opens here on Saturday, May 15.

A force of several hundred men is rushing to completion the improvements at the course. The new mile track is about ready. The grandstand has been doubled in size. A clubhouse is being built. The Jockey Club is spending $100,000 in the program that will make Beulah Park the center of racing in the Buckeye state.

The most modern type of finish camera operated by the "electric eye" will be installed. Pictures of all close finishes will be posted that the patrons may see for themselves proof of the order of finish in the races.

These improvements and higher purses offered will attract better horses to the popular Grove City course. Already over 1,500 horses are available for the less than 700 stalls at the track.

Along with better horses and better accommodations for the patrons, the Jockey Club is not forgetting to adorn its handsome new plant.

There will be a lake in the infield. Approaches to the course as well as the infield will be planted with flowers and shrubs. Beulah Park will be a pleasant place when the horses return next month.

HOLDING UP A QUEEN
EVERY PRETTY FAIR player knows the importance of holding up an ace until the third round when engaged in the play of many no trump contracts. It is amazing, however, to see how many overlook the principle of that play when possessing a queen in the dummy and a king in the closed hand or vice versa. club 10 was led, which South ducked, but West overtook it with the club J and ran his remaining clubs, setting the contract two tricks.

South could have made the contract if he had utilized the hold-up principle on the first club lead. It was quite evident to him that the fate of the hand depended on establishing the diamond suit, and as the finesse had to be taken toward the East hand, his correct play was the club 7 from dummy and not the Q. When East won the trick with the club 10, a return of the suit would have forced the club Ace to capture the club Q. No other trick could have been taken from him after that.

Two important court actions are scheduled for early trial before Common Pleas Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

The first, a hearing in foreclosure brought by John W. Hackett, receiver for the First National bank, Toledo, against Harvey Heffner and others, who act as a creditors' committee for C. C. Truax, operator of the Maizo Mills, will be argued Friday before the court. No jury will be used in the foreclosure proceedings.

Suit Asks $5,650
The original suit, asking $5,650, was filed in common pleas court March 1, 1935.

Other members of the creditors' committee named in the receiver's suit are C. A. Leist, Charles H. May, Henry Gibson Binns and Frank B. Marble.

The second suit is that of Mrs. Ruth Elsea, widow of Asa Elsea, against the Benedict Lines, Columbus trucking firm, for $22,786. The trial will begin before a jury on Monday, April 19.

Mr. Elsea was killed in an automobile-truck collision, north of South Bloomfield about a year ago. John McCrady and Bernard Dowd were killed in the same wreck. The trial was scheduled March 17, but was postponed.

C. I. O. CHIEFTAIN TELLS HIS AIDES TO ENROLL MEN

Magnate Tells Reporters He Will Not Recognize Any Organization

pathizers gathered in the state fairgrounds coliseum in Detroit last night to celebrate the Chrysler agreement, Ford received interviewers in his Georgia home and declared:

"We'll never recognize the United Automobile Workers union or any other union. We'll deal with individual workers."

Union members who might attempt a sit-down demonstration in his plants, he said, would be "led out" of the factories "because we know the men are simply duped and coerced by the strike leaders."

"Those who seized property not their own are in the same category as housebreakers."

The 73-year-old manufacturer declared that workers who participated in recent strikes "lost" because now they were "organized, regimented and without individual freedom. They'll pay money into unions and get nothing in return."

News of Ford's statement reached the coliseum here as Lewis prepared to speak to a crowd of 25,000 gathered to hear the union leaders explain the Chrysler settlement.

"I don't let a little thing like a loose statement by Henry Ford bother me in considering the future of the industry," the C. I. O. chief said.

Lewis Talks of Court

"A lot of things might happen," Lewis continued. "The supreme court of the United States some Monday might validate the Wagner Labor Relations act, and if the supreme court ever did that Henry would be in a bad way."

Lewis, Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W., and other union leaders warned that no immediate attempts should be made to obtain recognition in Ford plants, but that organizers should concentrate on building up union membership, especially in the manufacturer's River Rouge factory which employs between 80,000 and 90,000 workers.

"We'll deal with Henry Ford when that problem is before us and that is not now," Lewis said. "After all, Ford with all his millions, is just a man like you are. He owes the man who helped him create that industry an obligation and he owes to the people of the United States an obligation to uphold the law."

Representatives of the union and the Chrysler Corporation meet today to discuss supplemental features of the strike settlement, including wages, working hours and general working conditions.

Company executives said 65,000 employees would return to work as soon as possible in nine plants, and that capacity production schedules would be resumed within two weeks. "Feeder" plants, forced to close when the strike throttled their market, also were ready to furnish supplies to the manufacturing concern. One Chrysler official said $50,000,000 of parts would be required.

Lewis credited Governor Murphy with solution of the Chrysler-union dispute, and told the fairgrounds audience:

"Would that we had more Frank Murphys in the several states; would that we had more like him in congress."

Earle declared in a formal statement: "The bloodshed at the Hershey plant was a disgrace to the commonwealth. The blame lies directly on the sheriff of the county, who said he did not need the assistance of the state police to maintain order. "The state police will not be used to suppress union labor. Neither are they interested in the sit-down problem. They will prevent mob rule."

MAIZO MILLS FORECLOSURE, ELSEA DAMAGE ACTIONS ASSIGNED FOR TRIAL

JUDGE TO HEAR BANK RECEIVER'S CASE ON FRIDAY

C. C. Truax Property at Stake as Toledoan's Suit is Scheduled

JURY TO MEET APRIL 19

$22,786 Asked as Result of Motor-Truck Crash

Two important court actions are scheduled for early trial before Common Pleas Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

The first, a hearing in foreclosure brought by John W. Hackett, receiver for the First National bank, Toledo, against Harvey Heffner and others, who act as creditors' committee for C. C. Truax, operator of the Maizo Mills, will be argued Friday before the court. No jury will be used in the foreclosure proceedings.

Suit Asks $5,650

The original suit, asking $5,650, was filed in common pleas court March 1, 1935.

Other members of the creditors' committee named in the receiver's suit are C. A. Leist, Charles H. May, Henry Gibson Binns and Frank B. Marble.

The second suit is that of Mrs. Ruth Elsea, widow of Asa Elsea, against the Benedict Lines, Columbus trucking firm, for $22,786. The trial will begin before a jury on Monday, April 19.

Mr. Elsea was killed in an automobile-truck collision, north of South Bloomfield about a year ago. John McCrady and Bernard Dowden were killed in the same wreck. The trial was scheduled March 17, but was postponed.

C. I. O. CHIEFTAIN TELLS HIS AIDES TO ENROLL MEN

Magnate Tells Reporters He Will Not Recognize Any Organization

pathizers gathered in the state fairgrounds coliseum in Detroit last night to celebrate the Chrysler agreement, Ford received interviewers in his Georgia home and declared:

"We'll never recognize the United Automobile Workers union or any other union. We'll deal with individual workers."

Union members who might attempt a sit-down demonstration in his plants, he said, would be "led out" of the factories "because we know the men are simply duped and coerced by the strike leaders."

"Those who seized property not their own are in the same category as housebreakers."

The 73-year-old manufacturer declared that workers who participated in recent strikes "lost" because now they were "organized, regimented and without individual freedom. They'll pay money into unions and get nothing in return."

News of Ford's statement reached the coliseum here as Lewis prepared to speak to a crowd of 25,000 gathered to hear the union leaders explain the Chrysler settlement.

"I don't let a little thing like a loose statement by Henry Ford bother me in considering the future of the industry," the C. I. O. chief said.

Lewis Talks of Court

"A lot of things might happen," Lewis continued. "The supreme court of the United States some Monday might validate the Wagner Labor Relations act, and if the supreme court ever did that Henry would be in a bad way."

Lewis, Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W., and other union leaders warned that no immediate attempts should be made to obtain recognition in Ford plants, but that organizers should concentrate on building up union membership, especially in the manufacturer's River Rouge factory which employs between 80,000 and 90,000 workers.

"We'll deal with Henry Ford when that problem is before us and that is not now," Lewis said. "After all, Ford with all his millions, is just a man like you are. He owes the man who helped him create that industry an obligation and he owes to the people of the United States an obligation to uphold the law."

Representatives of the union and the Chrysler Corporation met today to discuss supplemental features of the strike settlement, including wages, working hours and general working conditions.

Company executives said 65,000 employees would return to work as soon as possible in nine plants, and that capacity production schedules would be resumed within two weeks. "Feeder" plants, forced to close when the strike throttled their market, also were ready to furnish supplies to the manufacturing concern. One Chrysler official said $50,000,000 of parts would be required.

Lewis credited Governor Murphy with solution of the Chrysler-union dispute, and told the fairgrounds audience:

"Would that we had more Frank Murphys in the several states; would that we had more like him in congress."
